PETERS TALKS IN DEFENCE OF TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(The) discussion was on tariff today on both the Senate and House sides of the Capitol. There were informal conferences between members of the House and Senate. Representative Peters of Massachusetts, a member of the Ways and Means Committee majority which passed the Democratic bill, was among the speakers on the Democratic side today, presenting an elaborate argument in defense of the measure.

Leaders of all three parties have been confronted with a disposition of their colleagues to delay opposition until the latter part of the time allotted to general debate, which will expire Monday night. The House Republicans conferred regarding their course tonight, when it is supposed to appear their policy about the cotton schedule.

The census already has been in favor of the wool schedule prepared by Representative Payne, but the cotton schedule has been delayed through what Representative Gardner of Massachusetts has explained to be inability of his subcommittee of the Ways and Means minority to agree. Mr. Gardner expected to be ready with the plan tonight.

Brooks of No. 31 Goodland street, Roxbury. The case was covered and Ward was released to his home. After hearing the policeman's story Judge Murray held Ward for sentence tomorrow.

MRS. JAMES B. DUKE, beautiful Southern wife of the "American tobacco king." The Dukes are to live for a few years in London, where Mrs.
Duke will attempt a social

NEW YORK, April 24.—James B. Duke, long known as "The American tobacco king," and his wife, Mrs. Duke, who was Mrs. William H. H. Duke, famous throughout the South for her beauty and wit, are sailing for England, where they are to make their home for an indefinite period.

Mr. Duke recently secured Dorchester House, which was the residence of William Pitt in Park Lane, London. According to several intimate friends, Mrs. Duke, shortly after her marriage, promised to attempt the social conquest of London.

"She always had that ambition," one said, "even when a girl. After her marriage she said she was sure the Duke would give her the opportunity to make the social place of London."

AUSTRIAN MAKES DEMAND POWERS
SEIZE SCUTARI

VIENNA, April 24.—The Austrian Government sent a strongly worded and peremptory circular note to the Powers this afternoon, demanding immediate and concerted action to turn the victorious Montenegrins out of Scutari.

It was learned today from a high diplomatic source that the Triple Entente, composed of England, Russia and France, has refused to discuss the issue of Montenegrin withdrawal from Scutari. The other two Powers in the triple Alliance, namely Germany and Italy, are not attending a bargaining desire to disconcert the Powers from the war in the Adriatic.

Won't Give Up Scutari.
Austrian leaders at Scutari remain an Albanian city, but the Montenegrins will not consent to give it up. They say, with-out receiving rich compensation, the Montenegrins for over four centuries.

A telegram from Berlin says that the German press, both official and unofficial, holds that the capture of Scutari by the Montenegrins may well result in the decrease of the Powers that the city shall be an Albanian territory.

A situation existing the greatest anxiety has arisen as a result of the fall of the city. From Scutari news is received that the Montenegrins people are determined that Scutari shall become a Montenegrin city and the little country apparently has the moral support of Berlin in this contention.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Mrs. Matilda Wynne, a negro, better known as Matilda Hopkins, an Oyster Bay washerwoman and scrubwoman, left an estate of more than $50,000, according to the death tax appraisal filed at Mineola. John Wynne, her husband, got more than $11,000. The remainder is divided among seven nephews and three nieces. The estate included $27,000 deposited in New York and Brooklyn savings banks.

Judge Murray
for Ending Case

Judge Michael J. Murray created excitement among the lawyers in the Municipal Court today when he censured Attorney Henry London for settling in the corridor a case which was scheduled to be tried before the judge.

Mr. Herwitz of the West End and William Shaw, proprietor of a paint shop at No. 243 Stuart street, for withdrawing two days' pay, amounting to $1.50.

When Shaw pleaded into Mr. London's office Clerk Ingle said Judge Murray would not accept the plea. Judge Murray turned to Attorney London and said: "You have no right to settle a case in the corridor of the courthouse. This is the place to settle it. The defendant had been summoned into court on the case, and on and off 17 1/2."

BAIL IN FARM
DEATH CASE

Joseph McKay and William Farrell, the two Burlington farmers who have been detained by the police in connection with the slaying of Charles E. O'Brien, the Burlington farmer and constable who was found dead with two bullet wounds in his body early yesterday morning, were arraigned in the Western District Court today on a charge of manslaughter. Both pleaded not guilty and were held without bail for a hearing May 1.

McKay is twenty-two and Farrell is twenty. They were originally arrested on suspicion. The warrant read in court today accused them of assisting and abetting O'Brien and charges that as a result of the alleged beating the two men killed O'Brien.

Chief of Police McEwen of Wolcott asked that the case be continued so that he can prepare the government case. Investigation by Police Chief McEwen must reveal the fact that O'Brien had shot that he was killed at his home. He was apparently killed after his death. The revenge theory developed from a story of trouble with a man who worked for O'Brien last year, and who swore to have revenge upon him for alleged ill-treatment. This man was employed in Wilmington, but investigation of the witnesses has failed to prove that he was in Burlington since last Thanksgiving.

Dr. William H. Keeler, medical examiner, will today hold an autopsy on O'Brien's body.

CAMPBELL OF KANSAS PRAISES HEARST LETTER

Philip Pitt Campbell, Congressman from Kansas, who is to tell the Boston City Club this evening the tariff views of the Republicans of the Middle West, in an interview today praised the protective ideas in William Randolph Hearst's recent open letter to President Wilson.

"Mr. Hearst's open letter to the President," said Mr. Campbell, "shows that from now on, his great chain of newspapers, which have always been in the van for the laborers and the wage-earners of the United States, will oppose putting these laborers on a level with the laborers of the whole world so far as the standards of life and wages are concerned."

Mr. Campbell has made a careful study of the tariff and is one of the most active advocates in Congress of a protective tariff. He will discuss tonight, at the regular Thursday meeting of the City Club, the hearing of the proposed new tariff bill on the business of the entire country, and especially of New England.

MISS FRANCES S. STEVENS, college girl, who "broke" three vicious coils owned by King Alfonso.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Miss Frances Stevens, the college girl who "broke" three vicious coils for King Alfonso of Spain and who sent the court of Europe in tumult at another time by accidentally smothering off the royal gift of the Shah of Persia, is in charge of the Mediterranean to ask permission to train some horses for King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Miss Stevens, it hardly need be said, is a past mistress of equestrianism. A year ago, while in Madrid, she was needed in mastering a ride of coils in the royal stables. For this she received a splendid gift from King Alfonso's master of horse.

CHARGE DELAY RAISED DEATH TOLL IN MINE

FINLEYVILLE, Pa., April 24.—That the company's efforts to minimize the extent of the disaster here which resulted in the loss of at least 100 lives as the result of an explosion in the Clairmont mine of the Monacaugh Coal & Coke Company, probably made the death toll heavier than it would have been otherwise, was the report being investigated by Senator James McFadden of Washington county today.

At 10 o'clock today the dead and missing were estimated at 111 men. Nineteen bodies at that time had been recovered.

T. M. Johnson, attorney for the company today issued a statement declaring that thirty-five bodies have been recovered and thirty-five men are yet in the mine. The company refused to admit that the men yet in the mine are dead, but this ruling the number of possible deaths to 120.

The officials of the bureau of mines at Pittsburgh offered their services about 6 o'clock and could have sent a mine rescue car on the scene an hour later.

Federal aid was not announced until late in the afternoon and as a result the government experts did not reach the mine until 6:30 P. M. Many declared that had the government experts been called earlier some of the men might have been got alive.

Rescuers worked frantically all night endeavoring to break through the walls of debris so that the bodies could be reached. Outside at the various entrances stood hundreds of relatives and friends of the entombed miners, waiting patiently for some word regarding their loved ones inside.

Because of smoke rescuers found it difficult to penetrate far into the mine. Rescuers were at times at the edge of the abandoned hope of finding any men alive.

The beer that is Aged—Four Months

Commonwealth of Massachusetts SUFFOLK, ss. Boston, March 27, 1913. James H. Nicholson, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, first being duly sworn, hereby makes oath and says: That he is the President of the Harvard Brewing Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; That all Harvard Export Beer (green label) has been brewed four months before it is offered for sale to the public; That all Harvard Export Beer which shall be offered to the public will, in the future, as now, have been brewed at least four months prior to the date of offering for sale; That all Harvard Export Beer which shall be offered to the public will, in the future, as now, have been brewed at least four months prior to the date of offering for sale; IN WITNESS WHEREOF the said James H. Nicholson has hereunto set his hand and seal the 27th day of March, A. D. 1913.

James H. Nicholson
President

Commonwealth of Massachusetts SUFFOLK, ss. Boston, March 27, 1913. That person who has been appointed the above named James H. Nicholson, to and being the President of the Harvard Brewing Company, and made oath that the foregoing affidavit by him subscribed is true. Before me,
J. B. Davis
Notary Public.

WHAT AGING MEANS TO US To have beer four months old we require extra extensive storage cellars in which to give it that age. It means a heavy investment in buildings, vats, materials and aging beer which is more of an investment than most brewers are willing to make. It means an extra force of skilled workmen and extra care extending over this long period.

WHAT AGING MEANS TO YOU A beer with an extreme mellowness of flavor. A beer with a delightful smoothness of taste. A beer that has been thoroughly fermented and ripened, the yeast being thoroughly eliminated. A brilliancy of appearance that only age can bring.

The dresses are of green silk. The trousers are of the same coloring. A large Van Dyke hat and rolling collar complete the striking costume.

PALMER PROMISED STATE RESTITUTION, SAY INVESTIGATORS

Daniel C. Palmer, former commissioner of weights and measures, who was removed from office for irregularities in his accounts, has promised restitution to the State, according to one of the investigators at work on the case.

Mr. Palmer has been in the department for several years. His present term would have expired July 1 next. He has been credited with having done much to increase the efficiency of the department and his years ago he was advanced to the head of the department with the title of commissioner of weights and measures.

STATE MAY GET $100,000 LEFT BY FLETCHER

Professor Wilbur of Harvard will today analyze the contents of the stomach of John W. Fletcher, the noted palmetist, who committed suicide by his apartment in the Hotel Wigham rather than be arrested, in order to determine the nature of the poison used by him.

Public Administrator Frank Leverett of the law firm of Leverett & Bates, Tremont Building, has been unable to find an heir-at-law, and so will have been found, although further search may reveal such a document.

Accordingly, the property amassed by the famous fortune teller, amounting, it is said, to over $100,000, may go to the State.

People who have visited Fletcher declare his art treasure alone are beyond price. One of the objects in the elaborately furnished suite of rooms in the Hotel Wigham, Tremont and Boston streets, which rent for $1,000 a year, was a carved chair of some dark, heavy wood, which palmetist Fletcher said was presented to him by the King of Italy as a token of his appreciation for advice given on an important diplomatic matter.

A woman visitor to the palmetist has described her experience with Fletcher, she said:

I was ushered into the presence of the man by a colored boy who was stationed at the outer door. I have said to you that I was somewhat difficult to gain admittance to the man, but I did not find it so.

First I was asked whether I desired a $5 or a $10 reading. After I had named the price that I desired to pay, Fletcher placed my hand on a small cushion. In the palm of my hand was thrown a strong light. That was about all the light there was in the room, for the place was heavily curtained.

Fletcher examined the lines in my hand through a strong reading or magnifying glass. He had a pleasant voice and was affable. But I was curious to know more about him, so I asked him so many questions that he finally laughed and said: "Are you here to listen to what I have to say, or to ask me questions?"

The place had a distinct Oriental atmosphere, and I remember it. There was a trace of incense about the room, and very little light in the portion of the apartment where Fletcher was to be found.

After he had finished my reading he said that if I would come again he would be able to tell me more. Of course, that may have been a little business bluff.

CITY EMPLOYEES GET INCREASE ON JUNE FIRST

Over 2,000 men employed by the city of Boston will receive an increase averaging twenty-five cents a day, after June 1. Mayor Fitzgerald, before leaving for Panama today signed the supplementary appropriation bill amounting to $17,000.

UPSET STOMACH AND INDIGESTION

Heartburn, Gas, Sourness or Dyspepsia Ended in Five Minutes with "Fape's Diapnepsin."

Time is! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, or flatulence, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Fape's Diapnepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the sweet, quickest and most certain remedy in the whole world, and, besides, it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know now it is needless to have a bad stomach.

For, for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Fape's Diapnepsin from your drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your own dispensation. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Diapnepsin belongs in your home anyway. It should be kept handy, should be one of the family set something which doesn't agree with them or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at day-time or during the night. It is there to give the quickest, surest relief known.

BUTTER BILL VETO UP IN SENATE; G. O. P. AID WILL SAVE MEASURE

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Republican party has an opportunity today to begin the work of rehabilitating itself in the eyes of the people of the State.

Governor Foss' anxious veto of the "butter bill" has come up for action. The Republicans should join the Democrats in passing the bill.

Here is the situation in the Senate. There are twenty-six Republicans and thirteen Democrats. When the bill was passed in the Senate every Democrat voted in favor of the bill.

To pass the bill over the Governor's veto requires a two-thirds vote. Twenty-six Senators must vote in favor of the bill, if it is to become law.

The thirteen Democrats have shown they do favor the bill. If thirteen Republicans—only half the total number of Republicans in the Senate—join the Democrats the bill will pass.

The situation then is this: The Democratic Senators are weak-kneed for the bill, but the balance of power is in the hands of the Republican Senators.

If the Republicans join with the Democrats in passing the bill the Republicans will deserve credit for a progressive and enlightened piece of legislation.

If the Republicans kill the bill they will have taken a stand directly opposite to the interests of every honest farmer, dairyman, butter manufacturer or seller and every consumer in the State.

Water at 45 Cents. For they will have voted to allow enormous profits to salt water at the price of butter—forty-five cents a pound.

Governor Foss' veto of this bill cannot be defended. Had he signed it he would have given evidence of a sane and progressive point of view as the question: "Shall the consumer get his dollar from the food-crook?"

But in his veto he aligned himself with the dishonest butter dealer, and against the consumer and every honest butter dealer in the State.

Governor Foss, instead of winning the praise of friends of food-purity and honesty, has forfeited by this veto the admiration and respect of every man or woman who wants the stockholders forced to give their customers what the customer pays for.

This afternoon in the Senate, the Republican leaders have an opportunity to join for themselves the friendship and approbation which Governor Foss has forfeited.

The Democrats in the Legislature have aligned themselves constantly as favoring this and similar legislation. But this matter is not one of politics. It is a matter that touches the pocketbooks of every person in the State, and there is just one simple remedy for the condition that exists.

In Millbury of the Boston Board of Health says there is a couple of tons in Boston constantly "washing" their butter, and filling it full of water to defraud the consumer. The only way to end this practice is to see if the honest butter bill, which Governor Foss has vetoed.

G. O. P. Has Opportunity. Let me once more review the condition as a result of which this bill was introduced.

1—All butter shipped into Massachusetts from outside is inspected by both the Federal revenue officials and the officials of the Department of Agriculture, to see if that butter contains more than 10 per cent. of water.

2—These officials see to it that no butter enters the State with more than 10 per cent. of water.

3—But in Boston there are some dishonest dealers who make a practice of "washing" their butter. That is they put twenty or thirty pounds of butter in a tub, pour water over it and then work the butter over and over with wooden paddles. They get out sometimes ten pounds more butter than they put in. The water has been incorporated into the butter. In cold weather this butter will solidify as high as 40 per cent. of this water.

4—The dishonest dealers sell this water butter at the price of real butter. They thus defraud the consumer by butter prices for water.

5—Introduced by Messrs. Fitzgerald, would have forced these unscrupulous dealers to stop their cheating tactics. AND THIS WORLD HAS BEEN THE ONLY EFFECT OF THE BILL.

Governor Foss vetoed the bill. The Republican party now holds the bill to the own hands. If we pass the bill or if we kill it. The vote this afternoon will show whether the Republicans have forfeited every claim to the respect of their constituents, or whether they have taken a stand for legislation that will protect their constituents from fraud.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY HAS ITS OPPORTUNITY. THIS AFTERNOON.

ONE CHAPTER IN BRANDEIS'S CAREER

The Public ought to know the real character of the game which Mr. Louis D. Brandeis is playing before Commissioner Prouty of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

We do not believe he can eventually fool the Commissioner. But everybody has not yet become familiar with the Brandeis methods.

The people of New England are asking who is the man higher up.

Who will pay Mr. Brandeis for depressing New Haven stock at a cost of millions of dollars to New England Stockholders?

Who is behind Brandeis?

He has done this thing before. If we remember rightly, he "represented" the "Lawrence Light Guard," when he attacked the New Haven in 1908.

In 1892 Brandeis made his first appearance as a railroad wrecker.

In April of that year, the Directors of the New York & New England Railroad Company received a letter signed "N. F. Goldsmith & Co.," protesting against the declaration of a dividend upon the preferred stock of the Railroad and notifying the Directors that they should rescind the vote declaring the dividend and as soon as practicable should inform Messrs. Warren & Brandeis, counsel for "N. F. Goldsmith & Co.," what action should be taken.

Several days later, the President and Secretary of the Railroad received letters from Messrs. Warren & Brandeis inquiring what action was contemplated in respect to the letter of "our client, Messrs. N. F. Goldsmith & Co."

On April 25th, 1892, a bill of complaint was filed by Messrs. Warren & Brandeis in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in behalf of "Nathaniel F. Goldsmith, et al.," against the New York & New England Railroad Company, praying for an injunction to restrain the Railroad from paying the dividend above mentioned.

In May, 1892, the stockholders of the New York & New England Railroad Company received a letter signed "N. F. Goldsmith & Co.," requesting proxies for use at a meeting called to consider an issue of consolidated bonds for the purpose of extending the railroad. After urging the necessity of action "to prevent the property of the Company from further depreciation" and charging that "the present management of the New York & New England Railroad is apparently determined to continue the system of using the property of the corporation without regard to the rights of the stockholders," "N. F. Goldsmith & Co." requested that proxies be sent "to our counsel, Messrs. Warren & Brandeis."

Several weeks later, the Board of Directors of the New York & New England Railroad Company received from Messrs. Warren & Brandeis a letter signed "N. F. Goldsmith & Co." protesting against the issuance of the bonds above mentioned.

On May 31st, 1892, a bill of complaint was filed by Messrs. Warren & Brandeis in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in behalf of "Nathaniel F. Goldsmith, et al." against the New York & New England Railroad Company, praying for an injunction to restrain the Railroad from issuing any bonds "for extending the lines of railroad of said corporation or purchasing new equipment or increasing or improving the plant of said corporation."

Apparently the purpose of "N. F. Goldsmith & Co." and Messrs. Warren & Brandeis was substantially accomplished by the publicity pending upon the commencement of these suits. For although on September 20th, 1892, a Special Master was appointed to take testimony in the first suit, the Court docket does not show that any such testimony was taken or that "N. F. Goldsmith & Co." or Messrs. Warren & Brandeis made any further effort to prosecute the suit. The second suit did not proceed even so far as this. For the long suffering defendant, the New York & New England Railroad Company, filed an answer setting forth as its first defense the following:

"This defendant says that this suit was not instituted and has never been prosecuted on behalf or for the benefit of the plaintiffs or any of the shareholders of this Company and was instituted in the names of the plaintiffs with their consent for the malicious purpose of injuring its credit and lowering the values of its shares and preventing it from raising money for the purposes of its business by one Austin Corbin of New York, who, before the commencement of this suit, agreed with the plaintiffs to pay all the expenses of this suit and to indemnify them against all the costs thereof. And this suit has at all times been unlawfully maintained and prosecuted for the said malicious purpose by and at the expense of the said Austin Corbin and other persons in privity with him and not interested in the affairs of this Company and is now unlawfully maintained and prosecuted by and at the expense of such other persons who have paid and agreed to indemnify the said Austin Corbin and the plaintiffs against all costs and expenses already or to be incurred in respect of this suit and has not at any time and is not now prosecuted on behalf or for the benefit of any of the said shareholders and the plaintiffs or any of them have never had any interest therein or paid or incurred any liability for any of the expenses thereof."

This answer of the defendant, New York & New England Railroad Company, was signed by Messrs. Storey & Thorndike, of which firm Moorfield Storey, a leader of the Boston Bar and one time President of the American Bar Association, was senior member.

With the filing of this answer, a paralysis apparently overtook the zeal of "N. F. Goldsmith & Co." and Messrs. Warren & Brandeis. No further proceedings were taken in either suit, and in January, 1896, upon a stipulation signed by Messrs. Warren & Brandeis providing that the bills of complaint in both suits "be dismissed without costs to any of the parties and that no record be made," both bills were dismissed and the litigation ceased.

I was General Manager of the New York & New England Railroad from April 1, 1892, until Nov. 1, 1892, during the time the suits were pending.

Who is the Corbin behind Mr. Brandeis's present activities?

MAINE SURE TO GIVE HARVARD BATTLE

The Harvard baseball nine will meet the University of Maine at Sorders' Field this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Maine has a fast aggregation of ball players and the game should be close. If Harvard does not play better than it did against Bowdoin, the chances are that it will have one more defeat registered against it.

Which are about one-seventh of all the games you can get and still cop. And we have played the games—just about one-seventh of the season's schedule. Furthermore, with Joe Wood on the bench, he has shown how long, that is, that he is a fraction more than two balls to each game.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND,
DAILY AND SUNDAY

Two Great Jurists Confess Per- version of Justice by the Courts—The Initiative and Referendum Will End Legis- lation from the Bench

Mr. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court and Ex-President Taft, one speaking in New York, the other at New Haven, simultaneously delivered some important opinions concerning the courts of this country.

They are in the nature of confessions, because both men love our courts. Judge Holmes is himself an honored member of the greatest court in the world. Mr. Taft was a distinguished judge before he entered active public life, and he sacrificed a great deal of public confidence by his defence of our courts while President, against the tide of criticism which has been rising over all this country.

With a sincerity which is apparent both in his character and from the form which his expression takes, Justice Holmes declares that the charges of corruption which are often made in letters to the judges of his court "make his heart ache."

Justice Holmes continues with this oftentimes admission concerning the conduct of the courts:

TWENTY YEARS AGO, WHEN A VAGUE TERROR WENT OVER THE EARTH AND THE WORD SOCIALISM BEGAN TO BE HEARD, FEAR WAS TRANSLATED BY JUDGES INTO DOCTRINES THAT HAD NO PROPER PLACE IN THE CONSTITUTION OR IN COMMON LAW.

This is a confession of corruption in at least one of the legitimate meanings of the word. Corruption has various phases. The transaction of the thirty pieces of silver is only one, ugly, vulgar phase. The statement of Justice Holmes is a confession of the deliberate perversion of the law by the courts in the fear of Socialism, and this is corruption.

President Taft, in an address Saturday night to the Yale law students and faculty, denounced the frequent failures of justice in our courts, and said:

I HAVE HAD THE FEELING THAT SOME DAY THE SOCIALISTS MIGHT DIRECT THEIR ATTACKS ON THE UN-EQUAL, UNJUST ADMINISTRATION OF THE LAW. . . . THE COURTROOM IS NOT THE PLACE TO GAMBLE WITH THE LAW. WE MUST KEEP LAW AND JUSTICE TOGETHER IN ORDER TO JUSTIFY LAW.

Since the world began no people ever thought of making their judges their legislators. Yet, Mr. Justice Holmes says that the courts began twenty years ago to pervert the constitution and the common law in order to prevent the advancement of Socialism.

With what result? Ex-President Taft points out the result when he says:

I HAVE HAD THE FEELING THAT SOME DAY THE SOCIALISTS MIGHT DIRECT THEIR ATTACKS ON THE UN-EQUAL, UNJUST ADMINISTRATION OF THE LAW.

Could anything better illustrate the folly of reposing the power of nullifying our legislation in the hands of judges, than the result of their attempt to check Socialism by a perversion of the constitution and the common law.

The deep-seated trouble lies in the power which the Supreme Court now exercises to set aside the laws passed by representatives of the people, whenever it is not consistent with THEIR notion of our form of government. And their notion of what is consistent with our constitution depends upon THEIR POLITICS.

The judges of the United States Supreme Court, sixty odd years ago, undertook to take the slavery question away from the people and to settle it by their ridiculous Dred Scott decision. Twenty years ago the Supreme Court undertook to prevent the levying of the Income Tax upon the great fortunes of the country. This is recognized by universal authority as the most just tax which has yet been devised to make men pay for the support of their government in proportion to their ability to pay. The right to levy such a tax is inherent in the national sovereignty itself. The tax has been levied for years in Europe and the Supreme Court has many times acknowledged its constitutionality in this country. This tax had probably saved the nation in the Civil War.

But it happened that five out of nine judges, one changing his mind over night, thought such a tax was unconstitutional. So the nation was deprived of one of its necessary powers of taxation and the masses of the people were obliged for twenty years to carry the burden which the rich men of the country should have carried.

By the confusion of these two distinguished friends of the courts, judicial legislation has been a failure. The cause of Socialism has not been retarded, but has been promoted by the misconduct of our courts, because Socialism feeds on injustice and will increase only as fast as its foolish opponents give it food.

Justice Holmes is a Massachusetts man and was taken from the Massachusetts Supreme Court, over which he once presided. It must be said in justice to him that twenty years ago, from his place on the Massachusetts Supreme Bench, he sounded a note of warning against this willful perversion of the courts, which, at its very beginning, he appears to have observed.

It was in February, 1894, when our Supreme Court was about to denounce as unconstitutional the very socialistic suggestion that the Legislature might pass a law which should take effect only upon the approval of the citizens of the Commonwealth, ascertained at the following election. These were Judge Holmes' prophetic words:

I THINK THAT IN CONSTRUING THE CONSTITUTION WE SHOULD REMEMBER THAT IT IS A FRAME OF GOVERNMENT FOR MEN OF OPPOSITE OPINIONS AND FOR THE FUTURE, AND THEREFORE NOT HASTILY IMPORT INTO IT OUR OWN VIEWS.

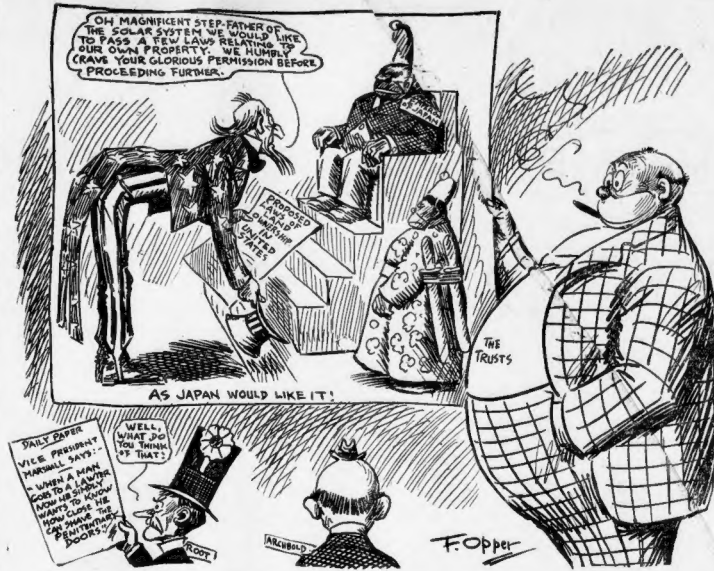

But four judges out of seven, and not the absent four, declared that the Legislature could not consult the people of this Commonwealth on the wisdom of any proposed law. Yet there is not one expressed word in the constitution which forbids it, and this is declared to be a government of and by the people!

The Initiative and Referendum will check this great evil, because a law passed by the people under the initiative and referendum will not be nullified by the courts. We shall then see an end to the vain and presumptuous attempts of judges to control our destinies, for our good as THEY see it, or against our good as WE see it.

The Cultivation of Flowers One Who Shuts His Nature Against Them Descends the Moral Scale.

By GARRETT P. SEEVIS.

COUNT sixteen back yards from the rear window where I sit writing, and in only one of them do I see any flowers, and that is one of the smallest and least favorably located. Yet its owner has managed so skillfully with the clothes lines that he has plenty of room to cultivate his plants. At present most of them are only shoots and shrubs, refreshing by their greenness; but I know that a month or two later they will be all in bloom, sending their perfumes up into my open window at every stir of the breeze.

Flowers Sweeten Air and Relieve Staleness of City Life

If all his neighbors would do what this man does, those sixteen backyards would be sixteen flower gardens whose beauty would call to all the inhabitants of the block to sit, by preference, at their rear windows, enjoying them. Their air would be sweetened, the sight delighted, and the weary staleness of city life for at least a hundred persons relieved.

The soil in that particular yard is naturally so better than in the others. But the lover of flowers, at a very slight cost in dollars, has fertilized it. He has taken away all the rubbish. He has laid out walks in an area only twenty feet square, set a flower urn in the centre, run bands of cultivation round the sides, drawn green triangles with fowl perimeters in the middle space, and the effect is to make the area seem twice as extensive as it did before.

He has dealt so persuasively with the soil that it bears plants right up against the brick walls on two sides, and the board fences on the other two. Not an inch is lost.

I know, from experience, that by June that little backyard will be an ambrosial garden which Italy might envy. Musing after morning I see the creator at work in it, behind his hole of his broad-brimmed hat elsewhere. On Sundays he works there with a beaming face, which shows how his tired brain revels in such recreation. Flowers were not made for man, but man was made for flowers. If he shuts his nature against them he descends in the moral scale. There was once a man, driven to desperation by hard fortune, who scaled a fence at night, and stole on tiptoe, with a case-knife in his hand, toward the side windows of a costly residence which he had made up his mind to enter and rob. He persuaded himself that his necessity justified his transgression. But as he cautiously crept across the plots and along the paths a little night-brown arose, and home upon it there came to him from all sides the delicate odors of many kinds of flowers.

Odors Recalled Home and Saved Man from Crime

He stopped like one thunder-struck. He threw down his knife and thanked God that chance had led him into that garden before he had laid stained him; for with the fragrance of the flowers there returned to him the memory of his mother, and he saw her again tending the roses that grew under his window when he was a boy. For a few minutes he breathed the perfume, and then, with mind cleared and heart strengthened, he retraced his steps to take the window in a better mood.

Any One Who Has Bit of Soil Can Cultivate Flowers

Everybody can become a cultivator of flowers who has the least bit of soil at his disposal. If you cannot live in the country in the summer, you can, at least, make flowers bloom in a city backyard. But if you have a little suburban garden you may on a small scale imitate Luther Burbank himself, making the flowers obey you by taking the hues and shapes that you prefer.

April is the time to begin. It is the morning of the year.

Failure is flower raising is due principally to two things—first to neglect of the soil, which needs enriching and fertilizing; and, second, to neglect of the noxious insects, plant lice and various kinds of bugs that devour the buds and blooms.

All insects are not injurious, and many are the best of friends to your flowers, without whose ministrations they could hardly exist. By cultivating a little garden of flowers you will learn, with ease and pleasure, two sciences—botany and entomology—which you cannot learn from books.

It is for their insect friends, naturalists say, that the flowers make themselves beautiful and odoriferous. Equivocal butterflies, of more kinds than you thought existed, will fill your little garden with the flutter of colored wings, drawn there by the flowers. Watch their method of getting nectar, but do not drive them away. The nectar was poured into the flower cup for them.

Bees will come, on the waves of the air, which they alone know, making a busy, humming start of your garden, and fertilizing the flowers by bearing golden loads of pollen from blossom to blossom on their powdered legs. Once in a while a jeweled hummingbird will whip a swift visit to the place, darting from blossom to blossom, and hanging suspended on misty winds, while it dips its long beak into the rich chalices.

Garden, However Tiny, Will Be a Little World Astir with Life

There are some tubular and trumpet-shaped flowers that might not be able to persecute their kind but for the humming-birds.

Your garden, however small, will be a little world astir with so much life that you may grow wise in studying it. It will be worth to you and your children a thousand times its cost.

have not met with such a loss, yet seeking, 'not a new Spring but And many of these old Springs contained no happiness at the time of their blossoming for the women who regret them.

There was one woman of my acquaintance who for years wore the cross of a suicidally insane father. Not almost suicidal, but murderous, he was closely confined in a retreat for the insane; the daughter felt herself a martyr, chosen by an unkind fate, to her such a sorrow, and, not possessing much of this world's goods, she was obliged to toil and earn money to support her unfortunate parent.

Yet, when kind death at last set the sad soul free, the daughter went about in heavy crape, and a whole department said: 'Not a new Spring but the old.' Though a whole department said this, she was constantly becoming the 'loss of her dear father.'

There was another woman who kept her friends in tears over her loss by telling a drinking bout for years. Not only did he drink to excess, but he gambled away all his savings and finally died of a lingering illness, leaving his wife to support herself as best she might.

This she did successfully, but her cry in former years was, 'No a new Spring I covet, but the old.'

Unquestionably her memory goes back to the days of her boyhood and the hours of happiness she enjoyed before the drink demon dispossessed the man and lover.

Time to Be Beautiful Must Be Regarded Over Her Shoulder

It is that early, low happiness she regrets, but the friends who recollect the years of misery she endured (not silently) with the chronic gambler and drunkard cannot sympathize with her lamentations for the days gone.

HOW CAN YOU SING?

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

CAN the heart sing of joy it does not know? Your city streets have never room for flowers; But buildings crowd with tall spire-pointing towers, And giant windmills blow—while you sigh blow Our country world into a misty glow. On gloomy days your gray horizon lowers; Before the gusts your rain-whirls cover.

Wind, rain, or sun—each element's your foe— Yet still of country joys you make your song: Our rippling brooks, our shady troilied bowers, Our warm, sweet-scented roses whose gentle showers Bring roosting bloom in a rainbow-coloured throng. You sing—and every country heart must long For all those humming, drowsing, warm-pulsed hours, When the sun's rays are in a rainbow-coloured throng. And all your grim, gray city life seems wrong. How can you sing? I think you never knew My hills, my streams, my forests and my sea. But still you sing over all the sudden view A spell of dreams—the country's here with me!
